FROM THE WEST.

(From the Virginia Union.)

San Francisco, January 30.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company's steamer Constitution sails for Panama to-day.

Quite an enthusiastic meeting of the Pueblo tract property holders was held in the District Court room, evening before last, to consult as to the best means of resisting the DeHaro claim, which was declared a fraud. A. S. Tubbs, George Treat, Alfred Barstow and Judge E. D. Sawyer were appointed an executive committee to look out for the interests of the claimants adverse to the DeHaro claim, and to employ counsel to argue the case before the Supreme Court at Washington. An agreement pledging property owners to pay $10 an acre to the Executive Committee on all land they claim, and a further sum of $30 an acre on the defeat of the claim, was drawn up and numerously signed. The claim contains some 11,000 acres. An agent will be sent to Washington to attend to the matter, and an effort will be made, by telegraph, to have the case continued in the Supreme Court calendar.

The address of Senator Nye, evening before last, on the state of the nation, drew together a large attendance at Union Hall. The proceeds will be applied to the Soldiers' Monument Fund.

Gold was 134¼ in New York on Monday; sterling, 108; for best bills; legal tenders are in moderate request at 74 buying, and 74¼ selling.

A ROMANTIC AFFAIR.—The Superintendent of Police in New York received lately a dispatch from Halifax, requesting him to arrest a lady who would arrive on board an English steamer, and who had assumed the name of Johnson. The arrest was made, and along with the lady a man named Jeremiah O'Connor, with whom she had eloped from Ireland, and both taken to the police headquarters. The New York Commercial thus gives the finale of the story:

On arriving at the Police Office the lady told her story to the Police Superintendent, and expressed her determination to have no other but O'Connor for her husband. She told him in order to get here with her lover she sold her horse to pay expenses, and before leaving Ireland, where she and her lover were born and reared—the one in the lap of luxury, and the other in the obscurity of a poor man's farm—she borrowed £20 from her brother. She had known Jeremiah O'Connor, the young man referred to, all her lifetime, and he had known her for the same length of time. They had been on terms of intimacy for nine years, and they were both not only willing but desirous to get married, a consummation which, however devoutly desired, never could have been accomplished in Ireland, owing to the impassable gulf of rank.

The young lady is the daughter of a landed gentleman, born to estate and great wealth, while the young man is the s[illegible] of a plain, poor, but respectable farmer. Kennedy (the Police Superintendent), could see no way out of his difficulty, having detained them, but the right way, so he at once arranged for the celebration of the nuptials. An Episcopal minister was sent for, and as he arrived the side door which shuts out intruders from Kennedy's front office was thrown open for an instant to admit him, the lady rose to her feet and exclaimed, "There is my brother and my cousin in the other room." She had caught a glimpse of them as the door was opened. Kennedy thereupon went into the other room and asked the gentlemen their names, and found them to be as the woman had said. He announced what was to take place inside, and told the brother that he was just in time to witness the ceremony of his sister's marriage. He threw his hands up in horror and exclaimed, "Impossible, impossible."

Kennedy told him that he could not see things in that light; that he was sure he would not want to take his sister back to Ireland with a stain upon her character; that, in fact, he (Kennedy) had taken no step he would not desire to have taken had the lady been his own sister under like circumstances.

The young man asked an opportunity to converse with his sister in private. It was granted. It resulted in his reconciliation to the event, and he and his cousin were witnesses of the marriage they had come from Ireland to steamer via Halifax to prevent.

The lady is well educated, beautiful and energetic, and although engaged to a gentleman now in China, with an income of £30,000 a year, chose the man of humbler rank, whom she learned to love when her passions were pure and her love that of innocence.

FUNERAL.—If the number of persons who attend a man's funeral be an evidence of their respect for him when living, then the late Supervisor Fairman must have been the most respected and esteemed citizen who ever died in this city, for his funeral cortege was the largest ever witnessed. The line of carriages extended from the Plaza down Washington street, along Montgomery to Sutter. By far the larger portion of these carriages were filled with ladies, while there was an unbroken line of gentlemen on foot, walking two and two, extending from the Court House to Montgomery street, including judges, lawyers, merchants, the Board of Supervisors, all the city officials, large delegations from all the companies of the Old Volunteers and from the New Paid Department, and numbers of the personal friends of the deceased. The procession started from the family residence, at the corner of California and St. Mary's street, and proceeded to Grace Church, corner of Stockton and California, where the impressive burial service of the Episcopal Church was performed by the Rev. A. Mr. Easton and Mr. Goodwin. After which the procession reformed and proceeded to the Court House, where a large addition to its numbers was made. The offices in the City Hall were draped in mourning, and the flags throughout the city were at half-mast. The whole of the carriages went to Lone Mountain, where the body was consigned to its last resting place on earth.—San Francisco Times.

DISABILITY.—An Indiana soldier during the war was discharged for disability. His wife recently gave birth to three children.

NOT INJURED.—Solome Hammerstadtle was stabbed in the arm, at Milwaukee, recently. Her name was not injured.

EMPEROR PEDRO AT PARIS.—Hunter, Cuttis, Milton, Blacklock, Seidenson, Ruler, Rawson and Holman, Preston, Goodrich and others [illegible] The Texas [illegible] pacing are the world's three great [illegible]

The Tariff.

It has been often and truly said that history repeats itself. Perhaps this is but another exemplification that like causes produce like effects. Mankind is the same in all ages of the world, modified, it is true, by circumstances, education and civilization, yet still essentially the same, and operated upon by the same influences. Just now at the East, underneath the existing questions which have arisen out of the war, the tariff is engaging the attention of politicians and people. The same old questions of protection to home industry and its counter proposition "free trade" are being debated. The same arguments which were thundered to the world in the days of Henry Clay are heard over again on the part of the protectionists, while Robt. J. Walker and the other great guns of the old Democratic party are once more re-echoed by the advocates of a Tariff for Revenue alone.

Were it not that the vital questions of reconstruction, impartial suffrage, impeachment and general amnesty overshadow everything else, there are strong indications that the country and its parties would be again divided on the tariff and currency questions. Who does not remember the days of the "American System", the good old times of Whiggery and Democracy, of log cabins and hard cider? This vital question of the tariff was thought then to have been settled. Notwithstanding the transcendent eloquence of Clay, and the matchless reasoning of Webster, the friends of the protective system went to the wall, and the people decided against them. While the annual expenses of the Government were only some seventy or eighty millions, a light tariff on foreign importations sufficed to raise revenue to liquidate its current expenditures. So "free trade and sailor's rights" was not only a favorite doctrine, but a possible realization. With the war, however, came other demands and other duties. Our expenditures rose rapidly to two hundred, four hundred, one thousand millions per annum. The public debt increased, not gradually, but by giant and rapid strides to near three thousand millions, and the interest on our bonds, which represented this debt, must be met. As one of the great means of raising money for this purpose the tariff was resorted to. In old time Democratic parlance, it was a tariff for revenue, but in its practical workings it became also, and wisely, a tariff for incidental, yet useful actual protection. Under its inspiring influence manufactures throughout the East sprung up and progressed. But they prospered, not solely from the protection which the tariff gave to them. The Government in the prosecution of the great civil war was an immense consumer of manufactured as well as agricultural productions. Millions of money found its way from the Treasury to the manufacturer's pockets, for iron, clothes, wagons, leather, and the thousand articles which enter into the materiel of armies. With such a home market at their very doors, our manufacturers could well have entered into competition with foreign countries and held their own. The manufacturing capacity of the country was thus strained to its utmost tension.

But the war is over. A million of men have been disbanded from the armies. The great consumer—Government—retires suddenly from the market. Its streams of money cease to flow to the factories and workshops; manufactures languish and mills stop, for want of profitable employment. Now comes up the great cry from the manufacturers and capitalists that they must be protected by a tariff for that purpose. In order that their mills may be kept going, Congress must increase the tariff on certain articles to such an extent as will enable them to make up the difference between the price at which the article can be furnished by importation, and that at which it can be profitably manufactured at home. The country is asked to force the subject of manufactures, at a heavy cost, under a threat or prediction that unless it does many of the mills will close their doors. It is the old battle over again, and the result will be as of yore. Protection for the sake of protection will go to the wall. A tariff, primarily for revenue, incidentally for protection, will prevail. One of the dead issues of the last buried past, is thus again resurrected and brought to life. But if the tribune of the people, the father of the celebrated "American System," could not, as he did not, succeed with his Protective Tariff, we doubt if any of his puny successors will be able to triumph, now that he is gone, and his matchless oratory stilled in death.

Some inquiry having been made about the amount of money to be paid for the arrest of John H. Surratt, it is worth while to call attention to the fact that the order offering a reward for his capture was revoked by the President about this late in the fall of 1865. Two months at least after the State Department knew he had gone to Liverpool, and some weeks after information was sent to our Consul at that point to no nothing toward effecting his arrest.

Among the marriage licenses issued by the Clerk of the Probate Court of Cincinnati was one authorizing the marriage of Cesare Ristori (the brother of Adelaide Ristori,) with Adelaide Grimmastine. The consummation of this marriage will give to the celebrated artiste at once a sister-in-law and a namesake.

The Committee on the Murder of Maine Soldiers have called Secretary Stanton to give evidence, and it is expected that he will say the murderers were removed from Dutton to Fort Delaware by his advice, in believing that there would be safer there than where the Rebel leaders could reach them.

The Times' special says the following are the amendments to the Constitution which the leading Southern men in Washington have agreed to, and the President likewise:

Art. 14: Sec. 1. No State has the right to secede, nor has the Federal Government the right to eject a State, or deprive it of representation in Congress.

2. The United States debt shall be held sacred and inviolate; the Rebel debt shall never be paid by the nation, or by any State.

3. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to its jurisdiction, shall be citizens, and in all the States shall have the rights and immunities of life, liberty and property guaranteed.

4. Representation shall be based on numbers, counting all persons except Indians not taxed; but when a State excludes any of its population, on account of race or color, from voting, then those excluded shall not be counted in the basis of representation; and this shall also be ingrafted in the State Constitutions.

5. Every male citizen who has lived one year in the State and six months in the county, immediately preceding an election, and who can read the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, in the English language, and shall own $25 of taxable property, shall be entitled to vote; provided that no person who has heretofore voted shall be excluded from voting.

Washington, February 4.

In the Supreme Court to-day, the Yellow Jacket (Washoe) mining case, on a writ of error, was dismissed for want of jurisdiction, which leaves the original judgment of the Supreme Court of Nevada undisturbed, and is in favor of the company. About one-fourth of the mine, valued at six or eight hundred thousand dollars in gold, was involved.

New York, February 4.

The Commercial's special says the President's European correspondent, who criticised Motley, was McCracken, a relative of Chas. O'Connor, of New York.

Fort Philip Kearny.

The Army and Navy Journal, of November 24th, has the following description of this fort:

This new post, in the center of the Mountain District, Department of the Platte, and also in the heart of the chief hunting ground of the hostile Sioux ..., being also expressive of the first substantial occupation of the new short route to Montana, deserves notice. The expedition which was sent to establish it left Fort Kearny, May 19th, under command of Colonel H. B. Carrington, Eighteenth United States Infantry. Fort Reno was re-inforced, additional defenses erected, and two companies were advanced to the Big Horn River, that post receiving the name of Fort C. F. Smith. Fort Philip Kearny has been erected by Colonel Carrington, under his personal planning and daily supervision. It is in the forks of the Piney creeks, on a natural plateau 800 by 600 feet, with a natural slope or glacis on all sides.

The stockade is of pine, hewn to a touching surface, pointed, loop-holed and after the general plan of Mahan. At two corners are block-houses of 16-inch pine logs. The parade ground is 400 feet square, and was surveyed and laid out before the turf was cut by any wagon track. Walks 12 feet wide cross the parade, bending around a circle of 15 feet radius, where a flag staff of 120 feet displays the National colors. A graded street of 20 feet borders the parade. The additional 200 by 600 feet is a Quartermaster's yard, with warehouses and shops.

East of the Fort, and taking little Piney, is a corral for stock, hay, wood, etc., with palisade 10 feet high and quarters for teamsters, citizen employes, etc. Twelve double cabins, a blacksmith and wagon shop, and a portion of the stabling for mules, have been completed.

Two Quartermasters and Commissary buildings, 84 by 25 feet, with ten-foot ceiling, and similar buildings, in point of size, for four companies of infantry, have been completed and occupied. Guard-house and band quarters, 60 by 25 feet, are also in use. The hospital, 84 by 25 feet, with high ceiling, is, before this, ready for occupation.

Four hundred and fifty tons of hay have been cut; two steam saw-mills are in operation; over twelve thousand pine logs have been cut, hauled and used, and every part of the work has been done in the face of Indians who have repeatedly attacked hay and timber parties, and have made dashes at the pickets within half a mile of the post.

The work has never stopped except for the Sabbath, and it is not within the power of all the Indians of the northwest to assail the place.

The magazine on the parade is 16 by 15 feet, 8 feet in the clear, of 14 inches thickness of timber, water-proof, and thoroughly ventilated, having double doors and turf glacis sloping from the eaves.

The flagstaff is octagonal for 8 feet, of 18 inches diameter, painted black. The next 12 feet has 16 faces, dying out to a perfect round, returning to a square at the crosstrees.

The gates are 12 feet wide, of heavy plank, with a small wicket in the right valve, through which one man only can pass, stooping. All have locks, and the wickets are closed at retreat.

Coal is found at the east gate of the wall, and pine, hemlock and spruce are without limit.

We have been thus particular about this new Fort, so rapidly approaching completion, as a prominent army officer, who recently made it an official visit, pronounced the stockade the best he had met, except one built by the Hudson Bay Fur Company. The command reached the site of the Fort July 15th, so that all has been done in three months. So constant have been Indian trespasses that the men alternated guard duty, and had but every other night for sleep—this not unfrequently disturbed by night firing upon the pickets.

The main work of the expedition has been successfully accomplished, and the permanent occupation of the route is a fixed fact. Supplies for a year are in store, and the ground work is assured for a secure and rapid emigration to this new Territory.

General Crook has more Fights with the Indians.

Reports reached here by stage last Monday that General Crook has had three or four more engagements with the Indians. A soldier arrived with the news at Silver from Camp Lyon just before the stage left. The report is that General Crook found the Indians in force on the Malheur—attacked, whipped and pursued them in three engagements, with a loss of four men and ten wounded, capturing thirty prisoners and thirty-six horses, losing himself ten horses. At a place designated as Squaw Creek, he came upon the main body, reported to be five hundred strong.

Deeming it unsafe to attack so large a force with the number of men he had, he fell back toward Camp Lyon and sent for all the available men at the post within reach, and to Silver City for citizens to come out and help him, saying that he was anxious to clean them out handsomely before leaving them.

The above is about the substance of the rumors that reached here, as we could gather from parties who came over from Silver. It was also reported that one hundred and twenty-five men had left Silver to join General Crook, but there was no certainty about that. Whatever has been the success of General Crook, he is certainly earning high praise for the manner in which he is chasing those Indians. We are not going to pass any encomiums now, but the fact is that in a few days after he arrived here in command, he took what force he could, or thought necessary, and went right after the Indians, and kept after them, without marching back to Fort Boise for protection. It is hard work fighting Indians out here, but the prospect now looks better for them to be chastised into good behavior than ever before.—Idaho Statesman, 26th ult.

The clerks of the Attorney General's office are busily engaged in preparing the list of persons who were engaged in the rebellion and have been pardoned, to be furnished to the House. The list of those who left the United States Congress, the army and navy, and those who held commissions as Generals in the rebel army, was sent to the House a few days ago. When completed the list will comprise nearly 18,000 names.

A short time ago a man, named John Reilly, went into a barber's shop in Franklin street, New York, to prepare for attending his wife's funeral—her dead body lying in the house. While in the barber's chair he suddenly died from an aneurism of aorta, but so quietly did the dissolution take place that the barber, who was shaving him, did not know of it till he had finished his task.

The President's action in the case of G. B. Lamar, of Georgia, has just come to light. He was arrested and tried in October and November, 1866, for fraud and bribery and for stealing Government cotton, found guilty, and sentenced to five years' imprisonment and a fine of $25,000. The sentence was set aside by the President, and Mr. Lamar goes at large unmolested.

A Circular from Gen. J. B. Hood.

New Orleans, November 1, 1866.

Deeming it a duty ... officers and men who served with me in the late war, to place on record a brief account of the operations they performed, I have the honor to request all ... divisions and corps to forward to me, without delay, reports of all battles in which they ... while under my direction.

This will begin with the companies of ... Gol. John B. Magruder, at Yorktown, in May, 1861, and pass through the successive ... of the late Confederate army.

I would also request the commander of each separate organization to send, with his report, his photograph, and the photograph of any one of his commanders killed in action., together with such facts relating to his career and death, as may be interesting.

All officers who served upon my staff are requested to furnish me with their photograph pictures and reports of their labors and observations.

The following is regarded as the best form to embody the most important facts:

FORM.

Battle of ———
Date of ———, 186—
Hours of action.
Position on field.
Troops on right.
Troops in front and rear.
Number of officers and men present.
Names of all complimented.
Officers and men in official reports.
Number killed.
Number wounded.
Number missing.
Captures of officers, men, guns and flags.
Losses of officers, men, guns and flags.

The battery, battalion, brigade and division commanders, who were under my direction at the battle of Chickamauga, are particularly desired to send me reports of the parts they bore.

The officers who were thus associated with me are to be found engaged in the occupations of civil life from Baltimore and St. Louis to the Rio Grande, and I must, therefore, appeal to the newspaper press to assist me in accomplishing my undertaking by publishing this circular.

It is not my intention to attempt to write a history of the war. My object is simply to collate facts with regard to military operations.

It will remain for the historian, who shall aspire to draw a truthful picture of the eventful and interesting epoch, with which I was somewhat connected, to assign to the facts embraced in these memorials their proper place and just significance.

I wish to devote the time I can spare from my business to relate with the directness and brevity of a soldier, what I saw on many battle fields and arduous campaigns, and the part my comrades performed.

Respectfully,

J. B. Hood.

Judge Ray, the temperance lecturer, in one of his efforts, got off the following hard hit at "moderate drinkers:" All those who in youth acquire a habit of drinking whisky, at forty years of age will be total abstainers or drunkards. No one can use whisky for years with moderation. If there is a person in the audience before me whose experience disputes this, let him make it known. I will account for it, or acknowledge that I am mistaken." A tall, large man arose, and folding his arms in a dignified manner across his breast, said: "I offer myself as one whose own experience contradicts your statement." "Are you a moderate drinker?" asked the Judge. "I am." "How long have you drank in moderation?" "Forty years." "And were never intoxicated?" "Never." "Well," remarked the Judge, scanning his subject closely from head to foot, "yours is a singular case; yet I think it is easily accounted for. I am reminded by it of a little story: A colored man, with a loaf of bread and a bottle of whisky, sat down to dine on the bank of a clear stream. In breaking the bread, he dropped some of the crumbs into the water. These were eagerly seized and eaten by the fish. That circumstance suggested to the darkey the idea of dipping the bread in the whisky and feeding it to them. He tried it. It worked well. Some of the fish ate of it, became drunk, and floated helplessly on the surface. In this way he easily caught a great number. But in the stream was a large fish, very unlike the rest. It partook freely of the bread and whisky with no perceptible effect. It was shy of every effort of the darkey to take it. He resolved to have it at all hazards, that he might learn its name and nature. He procured a net, and after much effort captured it, carried it to a colored neighbor and asked his opinion in the matter. The other surveyed the wonder a moment, and then said: 'Sambo, I understans dis case. Dis fish is a mullet-head; it ain't got any brains!' 'In other words,' added the Judge, alcohol affects only the brain, and, of course, those having none may drink without injury." The storm of laughter which followed drove the "moderate drinker" suddenly from the house.

It is many years ago, says the Troy Press, since Misses Susan and Kate Denin, then in their "teens," made their first bow to a Trojan audience at the old Museum, under the mentorship of the lamented Jack Winans, their stepfather. They at once became quite great favorites, the Museum being crowded to suffocation every evening. All the gay young men in town were "taken" with the Denins, and on one occasion their appreciation and admiration found vent in the presentation of a gold watch and chain to Miss Susan. A young gent, then and now connected editorially with one of the local papers, was selected to do the presentation business. Evening came, and young gent was gorgeously attired. The play to him was all a dream, so bewildered was his mind with the importance of the character he was called upon to perform. After the play was over, Miss Denin appeared before the audiance, and the curtain went up. The "presentation" man, half fainting, toddled on the stage, and, greatly to the surprise of the actress, commenced addressing her in a sort of incoherent manner. He laughed and then grinned—looked at the actress and then at the watch and chain which he held in his hand. He ceased to speak except in a pantomimic way, and finally fainted, falling into the arms of Miss Denin. The audience roared, cheered and jeered—the actress could scarcely contain herself with laughter. The "presentation chap" finally recovered himself so for as to be able to stand on his "pins," and realizing his position, he staggered toward the audience and spoke something like as follows: "L-ladies an-an-g-gentlemen—You don't know that I've got the liver complaint. It prostrated me on this occasion!" [Cries in the gallery—"Get out, old livers"—"Put your head to soak"—"Give Sue the watch and clear out," etc.] This was too much for "Liver Complaint," and he "cleared out" on the "double quick."

An enterprise of which Americans are wholly in control is the colonization, or settlement, of a grant made by the Sultan of Borneo to the American Trading Company of New York and China. The grant comprises something like eighteen thousand square miles, in the northern part of Borneo. This great island—with the exception of Australia the largest and richest in the world—has never been developed by traders. Its productions are large and various, comprising spices, camphor, rubber, precious stones, and minerals. The arrangement under which the company propose to trade with Borneo is extremely liberal on the part of the Sultan.

...Daily Union Vedette

Local and Miscellaneous.

ADVERTISERS.—The Vedette is the cheapest newspaper of Utah. Its extensive circulation in the mining camp and city of Montana and Idaho, which it gives the telegraphic despatches a whole week ahead of the Pacific papers, makes it the most advantageous medium for advertising in these four Territories.

REPLY.—The Statesman rather uncere-moniously calls us to account for punning one of the Government officers, while passing through Salt Lake City. We can assure our cotemporary that Judge Hough did not write the notice, but that "we" did, and the information derived from an old resident of Idaho. We deny that the VEDETTE can be used as a vehicle of puffing "everybody that asks for it," but when a stranger is introduced and the representations made by his friends, whom we have supposed to think will not make a wrong statement, we are always ready to note the same. Having no personal interest in the matter, we only intended a compliment to one which we were led to believe was a favorite son of Idaho.

RETIRE.—Mr. Horace Wheat, a well known merchant of this city, who for many years has been connected with the house of Gilbert & Sons, leaves us to-day. Mr. Wheat will visit the city of New York on business, and it is hoped by his many friends that his absence will not be prolonged. We expect the coming spring will be wreathed with the smiling smiles of himself and his estimable lady.

TO RENT.—Small house to let on Emigration street. See advertisement. feb1-tf

THE CALIFORNIA FARMER.—This interesting paper is regularly received by us, and its columns are filled with much valuable information to the farmers and agriculturalists in this part of the country. The following may be worthy of attention:

"Advance the winter and spring chickens housed in outhouses, but in mild weather this practice is adopted. "In some parts of France," says Gayelin, "where poultry raising is carried on as a trade, they seldom allow the hen to lead the chickens after being hatched, as the hen is more valuable for laying eggs; but they entrust this office either to ducks or turkeys, which are said to be far better protectors to the chickens than a hen. They require, however, a certain amount of training preparatory to being entrusted with the charge, which consists of this: When a hen has been hatching for some months—as described in the last number of the Farmer—and shows a disposition to leave the glass full of wine is given her in the evening, and a number of chickens are substituted for the eggs; on waking in the morning she kindly takes to them, and leads them about strutting amid a group of seventy to one hundred chickens with the dignity of a major. When, however, a troop leader is desired that has not been hatching, such as a capon or a turkey, then it is usual to pluck some of their feathers from the breast, and give them a glass of wine, and whilst in a state of inebriation to place some chickens under them; and on getting sober the next morning they feel that some sudden change has come over them. I feel in justice bound to say that these artificial protectors are most unfit to shelter chickens in the day time, but in the evening they are placed with their charge in a shallow box filled with hay, from which they do not move till the door of the box is opened next morning. I must not omit to mention that the chickens are not entrusted to the mother or leader before they are a week old, and then only in fine weather."

SALARIES.—The following is a list of the salaries of the States and Territories:

States—Alabama, Robert M. Patton; Arkansas, Isaac Murphy; California, Frederick F. Low; Connecticut, Joseph R. Hawley; Delaware, Gove Saulsbery; Florida, David S. Walker; Georgia, Charles J. Jenkins; Illinois, Richard J. Oglesby; Indiana, Conrad Baker; Iowa, William M. Stone; Kansas, Samuel J. Crawford; Kentucky, Thomas E. Bramlette; Louisiana, James M. Wells; Maine, Joshua L. Chamberlain; Massachusetts, Alex. H. Rice; Maryland, Thomas Swann; Michigan, Henry H. Crapo; Mississippi, Benjamin G. Humphreys; Missouri, Thom. C. Fletcher; Nebraska, Wm. K. Marshall; New Hampshire, Frederick Smythe; New York, Reuben E. Fenton; New Jersey, Marcus L. Ward; Ohio, Henry G. Blasdel; North Carolina, Jonathan Worth; Ohio, Jonathan D. Cox; Oregon, G. L. Woods; Pennsylvania, John W. Geary; Rhode Island, Ambrose E. Burnside; South Carolina, James L. Orr; Texas, James W. Throckmorton; Tennessee, William G. Brownlow; Vermont, Paul Dillingham; Virginia, Francis H. Pierpont; West Virginia, A. I. Boreman; Wisconsin, Lucius Fairchild.

Territories—Arizona, Richard McCormick; Dakota, Alexander Cummings; Dakota, Newton Edmunds; Montana, Green Clay Smith; New Mexico, Alvin Saunders; New Mexico, Henry; Utah, Charles Durkee; Washington, Marshall Pickering.

The highest salary paid to a Governor is that of California, which is $7,000 in gold. Nevada pays $5,000; Nevada, New York and Pennsylvania, per $4,000. Several States pay $3,600, but the salaries are generally $2,000. The Governors of Territories receive $2,500 annual salary.

ARIZONA.—Governor McCormick, of Arizona, has been for some weeks in this city, arranging for greater military protection for the people and interests of that Territory, which has succeeded to his satisfaction, and left home on the steamer to-day. He will be accompanied by four companies of United States Regulars—two infantry and two cavalry. The cavalry companies having preceded him, the troops are under command of Colonel Gregg, late a dashing cavalry officer in the army of the Potomac. Arizona is just now attracting the attention of the Government and the public. In a month from now an agent of Wells, Fargo & Co. will go down to establish agencies at Prescott and elsewhere in the Territory; and also a special agent of the Post Office Department, to examine mail facilities, ready in operation, and arrange for such new ones as may be necessary. The latter, in consulting the interests of its readers, have regular correspondents in Arizona at all points of any importance, and the Vedette trust, is not much longer destined to suffer its years in neglect and oblivion.

GEN. HOWARD, Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau, has just returned to Washington from an extensive tour through the South, and reports affairs in a satisfactory condition. The freedmen are doing better than at any period since the close of the war, and there is almost an entire absence of crime. General Howard is preparing for another trip.

EDITORIAL.—It is reported from Washington that J. M. Murphy, ex-Recorder of this city, I. T., has been appointed Governor of Idaho.

We learn from Col. Conk, Assistant of Boise valley, the following about the Indian raid mentioned in the VEDETTE of the 23d inst. Glass and two others, were out hunting between the Boise and Snake rivers. They went with their wagon until it became difficult on account of the sage brush, when they mounted their horses and started on. Glass saw what he supposed to be a hare behind a sage bush, and tried to get a shot at it; but it proved to be an Indian, who shot him in the arm. Another Indian shot at one of the other men at the same time, and they all fled. A party of men shortly after went in pursuit, and reported seeing five Indians. Mr. Glass had his arm broken by the shot. The Indians got the horses.—Idaho Statesman, Jan. 31st.

AN INDIAN WAR COMING.—There can be no doubt that we are to have a general Indian war on the Plains, and it is to be hoped it will be short and decisive. A large force is at the command of the Government, and the coming summer ought to see these savages taught a lesson which will prevent any future trouble, at least on the great routes of travel. These Indian wars form a small item in the large bill the nation is caused to pay, and their recurrence in the future, should be rendered impossible, whatever means have to be adopted. The plan proposed by General Sherman is to confine the Indians to districts north and south of the lines of overland travel, should be carried out without delay, as it will simplify the task of keeping our red brethren in order.—San Francisco Times.

THE number of incorporated cities in the State of Indiana is thirty-two, an increase of nine over last year. The number of townships, nine hundred and eighty-two, an increase of six over 1865; the incorporated towns number ninety-five, a decrease of eight.

THE English papers announce the death of Lord Byron's boot-maker, at the age of eighty-six. The lasts on which he made the poet's boots are still preserved in the museum at Nottingham.

THE ELECTION.—No official report of the result of the election in this city has yet been made. A private letter from Stockton, Utah, states that the entire vote was cast for Mr. M'Grorty.

THE Amazon, Tocantinus and San Francisco rivers, in South America, have been opened to the trade of all nations.

A young fellow in Burlington has married his stepmother.

A Mrs. Drummond, of Davenport, is arrested for trigamy.

Phil. Sheridan denies he is to marry a belle of Louisiana.

Madame Parepa is about to marry Carl Rosa, the violinist.

The world consumes annually nearly six million bales of cotton.

The receipts of the Chicago theatres last year were $380,095.

The advertising receipts of the St. Louis newspapers for the last year were $500,137.

A romantic writer says the Alabama sunk beneath the waves "virgin and undefiled by hostile tread."

A young man, just out of Auburn Prison, says he has lost all love and admiration for "auburn locks."

I. MATTISON,

Next to New York Store, East Temple Street,
de6-1m Great Salt Lake City.

Major General Patrick Edward Connor, the General Commanding, has been [illegible] history has an officer of superior military accomplishments. A native of Virginia, he graduated at West Point, and subsequently joined the sixth regiment of Infantry [illegible] conducted, in October and November 1828, a detachment to Ft. Snelling in open boats—the succeeding year marched [illegible] Ft. Leavenworth, and was attacked by 500 Comanches, whom he repulsed by charging through them at the head of thirty-six men. This was Gen. Cook's introduction to war, of which he has since seen so much, and in which he has always acquitted himself with honor for courage and capacity. He engaged in the Black Hawk war and distinguished himself at the battle of Bad Axe. At the close of the war he was appointed by General Arbuckle himself. Appointed 1st Lt. of Dragoons and marched in the winter of 1833, five hundred miles, to Ft. Gibson. He was promoted Captain in 1838, and from that year down to 1860–'61 the amount of service performed by Gen. Cook in Indian campaigning was surpassed by any officer in the service. In 1840 he was at Council Bluffs. He marched with Kearney to the conquest of New Mexico and was appointed a Lt. Col. of a Veteran Battalion. Was made Maj. of 2d Dragoons in 1847 for gallant service in Mexico—Lt. Col. in 1853; commanded Ft. Union in '54 and [illegible] was against the Apaches—overtook, by desperate marches, and defeated the Indians, for which he received the special commendations of Brig. Gen. Garland in General Orders. Commanded the Second Dragoons in the Sioux War of 1855 and distinguished himself in the action of Blue Water. His conduct commanding in the field in Kansas during the Border Civil War elicited the warmest praise of Gen. Smith and the Secretary of war. He joined the Utah Army and marched to Ft. Bridger in November '57. He was promoted Colonel by Seniority and entered Salt Lake in June. He was detached with his regiment all winter from the main army on special service, and was again complimented in General Orders. In his Indian service on the border he had marched 17,975 miles by land, and was seventy five months in tents.

At the breaking out of the war he commanded the Military Department of Utah, and when he saw the Virginians in the Army, abandoning the flag, he at once assumed high ground in a public declaration in favor of the Union. He was made Brig. Gen. of the army Nov. 12th, '61, joined the Army of the Potomac where he commanded a right of cavalry until March '62—commanded a cavalry Division in the Peninsula Campaign under McClellan, and fought at the head of his Division at Yorktown, Williamsburgh, Gaine's Mills, &c., was made President of General Court Martial in St. Louis in '63—commanded the District of Baton Rouge in '64—was appointed General Superintendent of the Recruiting Service of the army in 1864–65.—Omaha Herald.

Annexation.—An absurd rumor has somehow become current among the natives, to the effect that Brigham Young has in view the annexation of Hawaiinei to the government of Utah. They say the saintly President of that unique semi-republic-pretended-theocracy has a deep-laid plan, by which he expects to obtain the supreme control of these islands, and that the establishment of the mission at Laie on this island is the initiatory movement. However absurd this may sound, it is none the less true that some of the natives believe it, and profess to get their information from native converts to the Mormon faith. "Brother Brigham" is, however, far too shrewd to burn his fingers in any such speculation, and the rumor may be set down as groundless.—Honolulu Advertiser.

Susan Denis married her fifth husband at Albany, in December last. Mr. Peter Curley has the distinction of being No. 5.
